

Early learner

Since 2005, more girls go to school in Burundi. Because their parents have to work long hours, lots of girls have chores. That they should continue to do so even if they go to school.

This girl fits during class on her little brother

ABC

The Central African Republic is a country that is located in the continent of Africa.

It is one of the poorest countries in the world. So there is not much money to give. Schools kinds notebooks, pens or computers

Children with letter signs which they learn how to write

Fingers up!

Natural disasters (earthquake, flood) and civil war have much impact on education in the South American country of Colombia. Children can not go to school because the place is dangerous. But rather education is good for the development of the country. People who have been to school are better prepared for natural disasters and conflicts.

Who knows, raises his finger!

Separate rows

In Jordan, children need from their sixth to primary school. After six years of primary education is compulsory for another three years to attend school. Almost 97% of children go to school.

In this classroom in Jordan, there is a row of school desks for girls and a row of school desks for boys

Morning Ceremony

The Maasai people in Kenya (East Africa) has always attracted around with their cattle. They are nomads. For their children's school often (too) far away. Therefore, some Maasai tribes now a private school in their camp. Yet many Maasai children do not attend school because they have to shepherd the flock.

Kenyan Maasai hoist the flag on the school

Airy

Since 2005, the primary school in the African country of Burundi for free. Therefore now go much more children to school: almost 80% of all children go to primary school. There are so many kids who want to go to school, that is taught in school that are not off.

Pupils are taught in a classroom that only includes posts